NEW-YORK, June 19.

[We briefly mentioned in our paper a few days ago that a naval engagement had taken place off L'Orient early in April. The following particular and official account of it we find in the Belfaſt News-Letter, of the 30th of that month.]

ADMIRALTY OFFICE, April 23.

Extract of a Letter from Sir Harry Burrard Neale, to Lord Bridport.

St. Florenzo, at Sea, April 16.

MY LORD,

I have the honour to inform your Lordſhip that on the 9th inſt. after reconnoitering two French frigates at anchor in the port of L'Orient, I ſtood towards Belle Iſle. On our approach I ſaw ſome ſhips at anchor in the great Road, but as the weather was hazy, and the ſhips under the land, I could not ſufficiently aſcertain their ſtrength until we had run the full length of the iſland, when I clearly diſtinguiſhed them to be three French frigates, and a large ſailing gun veſſel, with their topſail-yards ready hoiſted to come out to us. At this inſtant a heavy and ſudden ſquall of wind from the N. W. carried away the Amelia's main top maſt, and her fore and mizen top gallant maſts; the fall of the former tearing a great part of the main-ſail from the yard.

The enemy, who was apparently waiting our near approach, got under weigh immediately, and made ſail towards us in a line ahead. Circumſtanced as we now were, I felt we had but one duty to perform, and that we could do nothing more than teſtify our readineſs to meet them; I therefore made the ſignal to prepare for battle: and when they had advanced a little to leeward of us I ſhortened ſail, ſo as for the Amelia to keep under command, with her fore and mizen top-ſails only, and made the ſignals to bear up, preſerving the weather gage and keeping good order. The enemy tacked to meet us, and we inſtantly commenced action, receiving the fire from one of the batteries on the iſland at the ſame time. The enemy were ſo little diſpoſed to cloſe quarters, we were under the neceſſity of bearing down upon them three times, until they were cloſe upon the iſlands of Pouat and Hedie. After engaging them one hour and fifty minutes they wore ſhip and ſtood from us. I am extremely ſorry we had it not in our power to do any thing more with the enemy (who had a port cloſe on each ſide of them) than compel them to relinquiſh an action which, from their ſuperiority, and the crippled ſtate of the Amelia previous to the action had inſpired them with the hope of ſucceſs.

Soon after the action ceaſed they bore up for the Loire, two of them apparently much ſhattered, and the gun veſſel returned to Belle Iſle,

It is with peculiar ſatisfaction I acquaint your Lordſhip that the active and ſpirited conduct of Captain Herbert is deſerving of the higheſt applauſe; and I feel that no encomiums of mine can do juſtice to his merit.

The Officers and ſhips companies of both ſhips conducted themſelves with the greateſt order and moſt determined courage; they are entitled to every commendation I can beſtow.

I take the liberty of naming in particlar, Lieutenants Farnall and Holmes, the Firſt Lieutenants of each ſhip, as very deſerving Officers.

The damage ſuſtained by His Majeſty's ſhips is principally confined to the maſts, ſails, and rigging.

By a veſſel captured ſince the action, I learn the frigates we engaged were La Cornelie, La Vengeance, and La Semillant: they have been lately ſtationed at Belle Iſle to guard the coaſt.

Enclоſed is a liſt of killed and wounded in each ſhip. I have the honour to be, &c. H. NEALE.

They are extremely well mounted on ſtrong and ſwift horſes, bearing lances couched as in days of ancient chivalry, and drive with ſuch impetuoſity as with eaſe to lift a Huſſar from his horſe.

Domeſtic Articles.

BOSTON, June 13.

This day at 12 o'clock, the Senate and Houſe convened together, and His Honor the Lieut. Governor, entered and delivered the following

SPEECH:

Mr. PRESIDENT, and Gentlemen of the Senate, and Gentlemen of the House of Representatives,

THERE is nothing in the concerns of the Commonwealth, which renders it particularly neceſſary that I ſhould requeſt a meeting with you at this time and place. The uſage, as well before the revolution as ſince the eſtabliſhment of our happy conſtitution, ſeems to demand this interview.

Although there is nothing ſpecial to communicate to you from the chair, nevertheleſs the reciprocation of ſentiments between the branches of government, cannot fail to have a ſalutary effect in promoting the peace and good order of the commonwealth, and conſequently the happineſs of the people, which is the great end of all. This can be done, conſiſtently with the forms of our government, in no other way, ſo conveniently and ſo well, as by thoſe communications between the executive and legiſlative departments, which are contemplated in the conſtitution. But here, gentlemen, the melancholy event, which has rendered it my duty to perform this part of governmental buſineſs, urges itſelf upon us, and irreſiſtibly demands a moment's pauſe.

A few days, only, have paſſed away ſince the public eye was attracted with the warmeſt expectations, upon the character of a man, as filling this department, who was remarkably dear to his country. If the ardent prayers and ready tears of the multitude of his brethren could have arreſted his ſeemingly untimely fate, he would now have addreſſed you from this place. We have performed our duty to our conſtituents, and complied with the feelings of our own hearts, in paying all the reſpect within our power to his funeral ſolemnities. The badges of ſorrow, with which we now appear, give evidence to the world in as forcible a manner as it can be done by external ſigns, of that unaffected grief, which cannot be fully expreſſed. It is not ſuitable to the preſent interview, that I ſhould attempt an eulogy on the character of the late Governor SUMNER; but it may be proper for me to obſerve, that the dignity of his perſon, the equanimity and mildneſs of his temper, his real unaffected piety, his natural and governmental talents, rendered him an ornament to ſociety, and a bleſſing in the world. We muſt kiſs the rod, and while our tears are flowing, under a ſenſe of a grievous calamity, we muſt adore that being, whoſe ways, though dark and intricate to us, are directed by unerring wiſdom.

Gentlemen of the Senate, and Gentlemen of the House of Representatives,

The ſpirit of our Conſtitution of Government, points to the principles on which the proſperity of our Republic depends. Thoſe being attended to and carried into execution will continue to promote the public and private happineſs of the people. An intelligent virtuous people cannot be miſerable; and thoſe who neglect to cultivate the faculties of the human mind, by the due means of education, can have no claim to public or private felicity.

Public worſhip may, with propriety, be conſidered as an important part of education; as the genuine principles of Chriſtianity meliorate the heart, and urge to the performance of ſocial and private duties. You will therefore, Gentlemen, employ all the means given you by the Conſtitution, to maintain and extend thoſe Religious Inſtitutions which were peculiarly dear to our pious anceſtors, and from which we, at this day, in great meaſure, derive our public happineſs. To this end, you will give every encouragement to our univerſity at Cambridge, that Religion and Learning may continue to flow from that Fountain.

Gentlemen,

The ſtate of the Treaſury is under your eye, from that you will find whether new ſupples are neceſſary, and for what purpoſes and, to what amount they may be wanted. From that we may learn, that our Government maintains its reputation and ſupports its reſpectability, without being a burden to the People, by whom it was eſtabliſhed, and by whoſe authority it is upheld.

The promotion of the Arts and Sciences and thoſe uſeful inventions by which the labor of man is leſſened, are worthy the attention of every Government. The encouragement of Agriculture, as the ſure and ſubſtantial ſource of wealth, takes rank of all other conſiderations. With this natural branch of buſineſs, Commerce is immediately connected; ſo that when one of them flouriſhes the other cannot languiſh.

I recommend to you, Gentlemen the reviſion of the Laws, as far as is conſiſtent in a ſummer Seſſion. Thoſe Acts which are uſeful, and are now expiring, will be revived, and the whole, as a ſyſtem, by continued attention, be reduced to ſuch a ſtate of plainneſs and ſimplicity as will be congenial to the nature of our Government.

Gentlemen,

While we contemplate, with pleaſure and ſatisfaction, the happy ſituation of our Commonwealth, we cannot forget that all our proſperity, and all our hopes, depend, under GOD, upon ourſelves. Unleſs we conſider ourſelves as part of the Nation, we ſhall ſoon become the object of Rapine and Plunder from without, and the ſeat of Diſcord and Contention within. To prevent an evil of ſuch a magnitude, we are to cheriſh and cultivate thoſe feelings which reſult from an idea of our National Character.

Senſible of the hazardous ſituation we are in, a Body of authorized Patriots compiled, and the People eſtabliſhed, a National Conſtitution, which, in its principles, is mild, ſafe and equal, and in its mode of execution, wiſe and efficient. We have had at the head of the General Government, men who could have no honor but what they derived from the performance of their duty, and no intereſt but that of their fellow-citizens. Hence it is, that, from the Adminiſtration of a WASHINGTON and an ADAMS, we have derived National Reſpectability and Private Security and Proſperity. To counteract the Conſtitutional Meaſures of the Preſident or Congreſs, is an attempt to ſubvert the Sovereignty of the Whole, and to proſtrate the Nation; and if diviſions and internal animoſities ſhall take place, if an uneaſy and groundleſs jealouſy ſhall prevail, the meaſures, from which alone we can expect to be defended, muſt be rendered inefficient.

My Fellow-Citizens will realize, that the Federal Government is as much their Government as is that of the Commonwealth, and their intereſt in it is as invaluable as their National Exiſtence; and therefore, every idea of its being a Foreign Government, ought to be treated as dangerous and contemptible; but I am perſuaded, that our enlightened Nation will yield obedience to the Laws, reverence and reſpect their Rulers and Magiſtrates, which proceed from themſelves and then we ſhall continue a united and happy People,

Gentlemen,

I ſhall communicate to you, by ſeparate Meſſages, whatever may be neceſſary in the preſent Seſſion; and ſhall attend with aſſiduity to ſuch Acts as you may lay before me. Should I conſider it to be my duty to diſapprove of any of them, and to lay my objections before you, I have no doubt you will believe my conduct to proceed from a ſenſe of duty, and conſider it with candour.

The appointment of ſuch Civil Officers as is devolved on me by the Conſtitution, ſhall be done with a view to the public good alone. The men whoſe characters are fair, and whoſe morals are pure, whoſe patriotiſm is tried, and whoſe abilities are equal to the duties of their office, ſhall be the ſubjects of my nomination.

MOSES GILL.

Council-chamber, Boston, June 13, 1799.

His Honor then withdrew, the Senate returned to their Hall, the Speech was read, and committed to Meſſrs. LOWELL, TITCOMB, PICKMAN, SKINNER, and STORER of Portland.

In the Senate the Speech was committed to the Hon. Meſſrs. DWIGHT, BIGELOW, and MASON.

Anſwer to His Honor's Speech.

Friday, June 14.

Ordered—That Meſſrs. Lowell, Titcomb, Pickman, Skinner, and Storer, of Portland, be a committee to wait on his honor the Lieutenant-Governor, and preſent him with the following

ADDRESS,

In anſwer to His Honor's Communications.

EDWARD H. ROBBINS, ſpeaker.

May it please your Honor,

THE Houſe of Repreſentatives have received with ſenſibility and reſpect the communications which your Honor has been pleaſed to make to them, in conformity to eſtabliſhed and almoſt immemorial uſage.—Thoſe practices and uſages, which have been ſanctioned by long experience, demand our reſpect, unleſs the moſt powerful and cogent reaſons can be oppoſed to them. In an age diſtinguiſhed by its rage for innovation, our reſpect for ancient inſtitutions ſhould be redoubled. The reciprocation of ſentiments between the different branches of the government, produces harmony, advances the public intereſt, and tends to promote good order and the happineſs of the People; which is the end and ought to be the aim of every free government. We ſincerely ſympathize with your honor in the grief occaſioned by the death of our late excellent chief magiſtrate. In adverting to this melancholy event, we cannot refrain from pauſing, and dwelling for a moment on thoſe qualities of the deceaſed, which ſo remarkably endeared him to his fellow citizens. In him were ſingularly united all thoſe virtues which conciliate affection and command reſpect. To an uncommon mildneſs of temper, and a diſpoſition to promote the happineſs of all, were joined unſhaken firmneſs, and an unyielding ſenſe of duty. His knowledge and diſcernment enabled, and his regard for the public good prompted him to make the moſt judicious appointments. A correct and enlightened underſtanding, and a long and intimate acquaintance with the ſcience of juriſprudence, qualified him to form juſt opinions of the expediency and conſtitutionality of ſuch legiſlative acts as were ſubmitted to his conſideration. The whole tenor of his life evidenced the ſincerity of his piety, and his unaffected patriotiſm. Surely the death of ſuch a magiſtrate, and, at ſuch a criſis, muſt be conſidered as a moſt ſerious public calamity, and if the ardent prayers of his fellow-citizens could have prolonged his moſt valuable life, long, very long would he have continued a bleſſing, and an ornament to his country. Nor will his death be lamented by the citizens of this State alone—the friends of the federal government throughout the union will deeply regret the loſs of a man, who in diſcharging the important duties of his high office, gave on every proper occaſion his decided ſupport to the meaſures of that government.

The excellent principles of our Conſtitution, founded wholly on the baſis of equal repreſentation and rational liberty, if properly attended to, and duly executed, cannot fail, under the bleſſings of Divine Providence, to promote the happineſs of the people, and to enſure the proſperity of the Republic. Intelligence and virtue are eſſential ingredients in the character of Republicans;—without them nations may fancy themſelves free, while they are loaded with fetters, and with them a brave people can never be enſlaved, although they may be occaſionally oppreſſed. The general means of education therefore cannot be too highly encouraged, and the Univerſity at Cambridge, as well as all other Seminaries of Learning, merit our peculiar regard, not only from the solemn injunctions of the Constitution, but from the important and distinguished benefits which have flowed from those literary fountains. The Christian Religion is the grand basis of public and private virtue. While we lament the introduction of modern philosophy, the spreading of atheistical principles, and the consequent decline of religious worship, we fully accord with your honor, that it is our incumbent duty to support, maintain and extend those public institutions of Religion, so dear to our pious ancestors, and which we justly estimate, as the foundation of our national glory and public happiness.

The state of the Treasury is grateful to our feelings, and honorable to the financial policy of our predecessors. The promotion of the arts and sciences which adorn and improve, and the encouragement of agriculture and commerce, which enrich a nation, are certainly important objects of legislation. To revise and to adapt our laws to the present improved state of our country, will continue to be the subject of our attention.

While we contemplate with pleasure, the tranquil and happy situation of this Commonwealth, we cannot forget that our future prosperity in a great measure depends under God, upon our own exertions. Our Federal Constitution was the result of a common sense of public danger, and of a general conviction of the total insufficiency of our old confederation. In its formation it was the work of the whole American people—In its execution it has been upheld by their virtue, and supported by their affection. In its principles, it was therefore naturally mild, safe and equal. In its administration, it has been uniformly wise, patriotic and efficient. If there have been any deluded citizens who have looked upon the Federal Government with a jealous and with a jaundiced eye,—if they have regarded as a foreign power the common guardian of our national rights, their numbers must at this moment be too inconsiderable to be dangerous. We regret that any past humiliating events in our country, should have rendered such remarks necessary, but we are happy in the full conviction, that the American people are fast returning to a just sense of their national character.

Without spirit Nations, like individuals, will be trampled upon.—Without a just and becoming sense of National Character, we fully agree with your Honor, that we should soon become tributaries, as we have long been the objects of the rapine and lawless plunder of a Foreign Nation. Internally we must cultivate a spirit of obedience, and cheerful support to the laws, and to those who administer them; for no axiom in politics is better founded than the one advanced by your Honor, that to counteract or calumniate the measures of the Federal or State Constituted Authorities, is a direct and alarming blow, aimed at the Sovereignty of the People themselves,

Any communications which may be made from the Chair, will merit our respect, and shall receive our serious and deliberate consideration.

The assurance which your Honor has been pleased to make, that in such appointments as shall unavoidably devolve upon you, in the course of the present year, you will have a view only to the public good, merits our highest approbation. If fair characters, pure morals, tried patriotism, and competent abilities, shall be the only recommendations to office, the Magistrates of Massachusetts, will in truth, "become a terror to evil doers, and a praise and encouragement to such as do well."

BOSTON, June 15.

The whole tonnage of the United States in 1792, fell short of 200,000 tons—it now falls but little short of 900,000. The exports of these States reported in the beginning of that year, amounted to twenty millions of dollars, they now amount to sixty millions.

NEW-YORK, June 19.

In transcribing from our Marine Minute on Monday evening, we omitted an article of news which we think of considerable importance—It is this:

Capt. King, of the Brandywine Miller, from Oporto informs us, that since the Decree of the French Directory, calling in their privateers, they have, generally carried their prizes into the small ports in Spain.—Here they refit for their cruizes. They say, if they go into French ports, they will be either embargoed or dismantled. By this it would seem that the Spaniards, who are co-operating with France, sanction what the Directory appear to condemn.

Capt. King further informs that the coast of Portugal swarms with French and Spanish privateers and piratical gun-boats; and that all defenceless vessels that come in their way, are sure to be made prizes of.

By arrivals yesterday.

In the afternoon of yesterday, the Pilot Boat Commerce came up from below the Hook. By her we learn, that on Monday last the John Jay Cutter, Capt. Loenard, took possession of the schooner Maria, under Danish colours, from St. Domingo, and put a prize-master on board. The commerce boarded this schooner last Sunday, and, as the Captain did not wish to come up, engaged the Commerce to bring down men! water! and provisions! which was complied with; but Capt. Loenard having possession of the Maria, did not permit her to receive these supplies.

The mate of the Maria came up in the Commerce—He tells us this story:

That some time since she sailed from Philadelphia to St. Thomas—from St. Thomas to Martinico and St. Domingo—thence to the place where she was captured. There, he said, she was to wait for orders from the owner's correspondent in New-York, and then she was to proceed to Hamburg!

The Maria is commanded by one Brown, and has one gun lashed to the mast.

The brig Lydia, Capt. Sprague, sailed from Antigua, May 24. Left there the schr. Peggy, Martin, of Virginia; schr. Atlantic, West, of Baltimore, and a number of other American Vessels.

May 25, in lat. 18. long 63, was boarded by the United States sloop of war Ganges—June 15, spoke a schooner from Virginia bound to Boston.

The ship Eagle, 11 days from St. Mary's, was coming up last evening.

A letter from Rotterdam of April 28, says, the Emperor, of Russia has embargoed all Hamburg vessels in his port, and demanded of the Imperial City, 60,000,000 marks banco; menacing in with an army in case of refusal. It is thought to be a political manoeuver to bring the King of Prussia to some decision; as he lately acted as the guardian of Hamburg.

CHARLESTON, May 24.

The British frigate Meleager, capt. Sir Charles Ogle, anchored off the Bar yesterday morning; several officers belonging to her came up to town yesterday.

Five days ago, the Meleager fell in with the United States brig General Pinckney, capt. Heyward.

June 10.

The United States sloop of war Herald, —— Sever, Esq. commander, anchored in the Roads yesterday.

BALTIMORE, June 18.

During the last week upwards of sixty brave Americans, were enrolled on the federal scroll by lieutenants STERETT and EDWARDS, whose exertions deserve the highest encomiums.

The rendezvous, is now broke up for a while, and a detachment of lieutenant EDWARDS's marines are placed to guard the two sloops of war at Fell's Point.

The United States have now ten stout frigates afloat, of from 32 to 44 guns; besides about 30 vessels of war, of from 10 to 24 guns, each.

NORFOLK, June 13.

The ship Roba and Betsey, captain Nimmo, (the first of the spring convoy) arrived in Hampton Roads last Tuesday. Left Cork the 12th April, under convoy of the Boston frigate, and parted with the fleet off the Western Islands. Was boarded by an English frigate, who took the latest papers.

PHILADELPHIA,

THURSDAY EVENING, JUNE 20

WHAT is the meaning of the multiplied, and never ending accounts, given by the Aurora, and other like news-papers, of the prodigious strength, military power, inexhaustible resources, skill, and courage of the French Nation? Do the Editors by such abominable exaggerations, hope to induce the People of the United States through fear, to draw themselves within their shell, to use the favorite expression of their leaders in and out of Congress? The fact is, there has not been more vile or wicked arts, practised in any of the countries which have been conquered, and received a French constitution from the Directory, than in the United States; nor more bare-faced attempts made, under various pretexts, to prevent all preparations for defence or war, by sea and land. Is it not apparent as the sun at noon day, that had the advice of these exclusive patriots, or real republicans been followed, we should perhaps, at this time, have been as much under the power of France, as the United Netherlands, or any other of her republicanized conquests? On reviewing the fate of other states and nations, let us be grateful to providence, first, That we have by manly preparations for war escaped the snare which had been laid, to throw us into the grasp of France, under some new-fangled form of Government, administered by the worshippers of her power, superior military tactics, and inexhaustible resources. 2d. That by a fair and rational comparison of the strength and means of the respective countries for war, joined to the space of sea France must traverse to attack the United States, with the difficulties and enormous expence she must encounter, to transport and maintain an army at such a distance, requiring as it would, continual reinforcements of men to repair its losses, which must happen, alike from victories or defeats, it is as demonstroble as any proposition in Euclid, that the United States, according to relative circumstances, are vastly an over-match, for this praised, proud, insidious and ambitious nation. We may safely therefore, confiding in the superintending care, of a beneficent, and all wise Providence, call up and marshal the strength he has bestowed upon a people, who still worship him in their hearts on his altars, and in his temples.

If ever this country is conquered by France or, which is the same thing republicanized (according to the meaning attached to this word, by our exclusive patriots) and brought under her councils, it will be owing to indecision in its executive, and to the prevalence of that system, recommended by the party opposed to the army and navy, and not by a fair and open contest of arms, superior courage and resources.

Let us do nothing; let us lie upon our oars; let us creep into our shell; was the perpetual cry of Gallatin, Nicholas and Giles. There never was, and never will be, but one sure way of obliging a powerful nation to act honestly; and that is, by armed preparations, to resist her unjust pretensions, and oppose with effect force to force.

CARNOT speaking of the liberty of conscience, and the press, in his reply to Bailleul's report; observes "I have often made these observations to the Directory, but it would have been, as easy to have persuaded the Grand Turk to have opened his Seraglio, to all the youth of Constantinople, as to have persuaded them, to have given freedom to religion and the press." "Our Republican Directors," he adds page 49, "wish to see France one huge political inquisition, or vast cymetery of living souls, like the prisons of Genoa, upon the gate of which was written through derision, the word Libertas."

A captain, belonging to this port, said to be a Frenchman, states, in a letter to his owner, published a few days since, that he had been captured by the French, and carried in—that they had treated him politely; and in short, that he cannot say too much in their PRAISE. To hear a plundered man sounding forth the praises of his plunderers, is something truly curious; and, one would think, must excite no very high idea of the means by which he came in a situation to experience all this politeness.

The Navy-office has been removed from Walnut street to the house formerly occupied by Dr. Ruston, the corner of Chesnut and Eighth streets.

The frigate United States we understand, will be ready to sail early next week. The recruits which she has lately enlisted, are mostly composed of native Americans.

The Constellation, we learn is to proceed to New-York.

A letter received in town this day from N. York, confirms the account of the loss of the ship Star, George of and from this port to N. Orleans; the ship is supposed to be totally lost and only a small part of her cargo saved.

The conflagrations by which the citizens of Baltimore have recently so greatly suffered, rendered it indispensably necessary to guard against similar misfortunes in future. None appeared so well adapted as the measure they have taken, viz. that of preventing the erection of Wooden Buildings within certain limits of the city, except such as had been heretofore contracted for. The Mayor, however, refused his assent to the measure, in the following message, Upon a re-consideration in the first and second branches of the City Council, it was, notwithstanding, adopted unanimously.

City of Baltimore, June 10. 1799.

Gentlemen of the First Branch of the CITY COUNCIL,

I approved and signed all the ordinances passed by the council at their last meeting, except the ordinance entitled "an ordinance to prevent the erection of wooden buildings within certain limits of the city of Baltimore," which appears to me to comprehend too great an extent of the city for the first essay, and includes some parts as yet but thinly settled: And although I am persuaded from experience, that wooden buildings, when completely finished, are more expensive than brick, yet I believe there will be found many persons within the limits of this ordinance, who from particular circumstances of title or situation, will be deprived of the present use of their property, if not permitted to erect temporary wooden buildings.—Had the prohibition been confined to the principal streets, or a more limited and central part of the city, I would have given it my signature; as it is, I have returned it for your reconsideration, being the first opportunity afforded since the bill was presented

JAMES CALHOUN.

From the Farmer's Register.

The credulity of many has been put to the test in accounting for a phenomenon which is stated to have taken place in Bedford county. Near to the Snaky Spring, a race has been cut through a piece of meadow out the sides of which there has lately issued, at seven or eight different times, a quantity of matter which bore a strong resemblance to BLOOD. This singular circumstance, which had been exaggerated by report was viewed by the superstitious as portentous of some impending evil. A gentleman of this place wrote to the owner of the land enquiring into the reality of the fact to which he received the following answer:

"At different, the amount of eight times and at so many different places, red matter precisely the appearance of Blood has issued forth out of a race which I have to convey the water into my meadow where there was never, to my knowledge, a spring rose before. The red matter is about as thick as the Blood, out of the vein of an ox; it has been seen to boil up above the surface of the water more than an inch, and continue from one to ten minutes, and the water afterwards bore every appearance of Blood for two or three hours. I had caught some of the matter, and kept it in a bottle, three or four days; but every hour it became more pale, and therefore not worth sending. I have given you a short history of literal facts, and you will please to think of it as you may deem meet. I am tired of making conjectures."

Mineralists tell us that mines frequently cleanse themselves by a discharge of extraneous matter. The most probable conjecture is that this phenomenon is a circumstance of this nature.

A POETICAL EPISTLE TO THE AUTHOR

By an American Gentleman.

[In introducing this celebrated work to the Gentlemen and Ladies of America, I have endeavored to give it a dress proportioned to its distinguished merit, and to the taste of those for whose amusement and delight it is intended. No expence has been spared in the publication; and I flatter myself that the work does not yield, either in paper or print, to any one ever published in America ——. This edition has an advantage over some former ones, as it contains by way of notes, the minor productions of the author; and, it has an advantage over every other edition, in the Poetical Epistle, which is prefixed to it, and which must be extremely gratifying to every lover of literature in this country, as it is a proof that there are Americans who have the taste to admire, the justice to applaud, and the talents to rival the Geniuses of other nations
